This article is roughly a 25 minute read ***

When I was growing up, my household had 3 vehicles. This was before I, the eldest of three, was even close to driving. My father drove his Chevy Blazer, my mother drove her minivan, and the third car was an ancient, rickety Oldsmobile Cutlass Supreme with no power steering. While the Oldsmobile would eventually become my first car, that's not why my parents purchased it. They had that beater for one reason, and one reason only.

It was the back-up plan.

If the blazer or minivan were to have issues or breakdown, they still had to get to work and drive us kids all over town. The Oldsmobile was the "continuity of transportation" plan that would keep the essential day to day operations of the "Patriot" household going if we lost one of the other two vehicles.

Our own government has similar back-up plans, though they are far more complex. The umbrella term for these back-up plans is "continuity of government (COG)." If an emergency occurs that disrupts the normal operations of our government, these COG plans are ready to make sure the essential functions of our government continue to be carried out.

For example: An enemy government nukes Washington D.C. What would our country do? Without a back-up plan, things would quickly turn to chaos.

The Devolution Series is based on the idea that Donald Trump implemented some form of COG plan in the face of a different kind of emergency - a stolen election.

Article II, Section 3 of the Constitution requires the President to “take Care that the Laws be faithfully executed.” As Commander-in-Chief of our armed forces, the President is charged with the responsibility of protecting and defending the United States.

The first fact you need to understand is that Donald John Trump would have been derelict in his duty as President of the United States and Commander in Chief of the military to allow the election to be stolen and Joe Biden installed as President.

Throughout the Devolution Series I have linked and sourced every claim with facts and do my best to go into painstaking detail. On the rare occasion that I speculate, I tell you that’s what I’m doing and only do so based on the facts available at the time. The devolution series is constantly evolving, and new data points are emerging every day.

Here you can find a list of contradictions, anomalies, and general oddities of the Joe Biden administration. This list is meant to serve as further supporting evidence to the Devolution Series that something strange is going on.

This article is an introduction and overview to the entire concept of the devolution theory. I won’t be going into the specific details like I do throughout the rest of the series, but you should walk away from this article with an understanding that devolution is real, and that it is not only possible, but likely, that Trump put a COG plan in motion before walking away from office.

I am not guaranteeing anything. This is a theory based on countless hours of research, but it’s still just a theory... for now.

Welcome to Devolution.

Wartime President

The Enemy

In order to understand why Trump may have implemented something like devolution, you need to know who he was up against. Trump was fighting against a global “criminal enterprise” that he labeled the “political establishment”. He called them out directly in one of his final campaign speeches from October of 2016:

Our movement is about replacing a failed and corrupt — now, when I say "corrupt," I'm talking about totally corrupt — political establishment, with a new government controlled by you, the American people.

There is nothing the political establishment will not do — no lie that they won't tell, to hold their prestige and power at your expense. And that's what's been happening.

The Washington establishment and the financial and media corporations that fund it exist for only one reason: to protect and enrich itself.

The establishment has trillions of dollars at stake in this election. As an example, just one single trade deal they'd like to pass involves trillions of dollars, controlled by many countries, corporations and lobbyists.

For those who control the levers of power in Washington, and for the global special interests, they partner with these people that don't have your good in mind. Our campaign represents a true existential threat like they haven't seen before.

Trump won in 2016 anyway and the political establishment spent the next 4 years attempting to delegitimize and remove him from office, culminating with them stealing the 2020 election. There was an article released on Feb 4th, 2021, that described in detail the lengths in which the political establishment went to in "fortifying" the election win for Joe Biden:

POLITICS • 2020 ELECTION

The Secret History of the Shadow Campaign That Saved the 2020 Election

That's why the participants want the secret history of the 2020 election told, even though it sounds like a paranoid fever dream—a well-funded cabal of powerful people, ranging across industries and ideologies, working together behind the scenes to influence perceptions, change rules and laws, steer media coverage and control the flow of information. They were not rigging the election; they were fortifying it. And they believe the public needs to understand the system's fragility in order to ensure that democracy in America endures.

Trump knew exactly who he was up against and exactly what they were going to do. He couldn't just sit idly by and let them get away with it.

The Authority

The entire basis for the devolution theory is that Trump is a wartime president. This premise is important because wartime Presidents assume wartime powers. I know that sounds weird because there was never a public and official declaration that we were at war. In certain times, that is not necessary.

There is a D.C. Circuit case (Campbell v. Clinton) setting precedent for what measures a President can take to “repel foreign aggression”:

recognizing that the President "has no power to initiate or declare a war," observed that "war may exist without a declaration on either side." Id. at 668. In instances where war is declared against the United States by the actions of another country, the President "does not initiate the war, but is bound to accept the challenge without waiting for any special legislative authority." Id. Importantly, the Court made clear that it would not dispute the President on measures necessary to repel foreign aggression. The President alone must determine what degree of force the crisis demands.

“War may exist without a declaration on either side.” If the “actions of another country” were interpreted by Trump as acts of war, then he was “bound to accept the challenge” and the courts “would not dispute” him on “measures necessary to repel foreign aggression.” This language provides Trump plenty of leeway to respond to situations that threaten the United States and allows him to use his authority as a wartime President to do what is needed to save the country.

In terms of the devolution theory, there two primary things we can look at as “foreign aggression” that could be interpreted as “declarations of war” to give Trump these wartime powers.

- Covid-19
- The theft of the 2020 election
 - Using Covid
 - Using Cyber

Covid was an Attack

Devolution - 15 covers all things related to Covid. It’s almost a certainty at this point that there was something nefarious going on at the WIV but all that matters is what Trump knew based on the intelligence he was receiving and how he interpreted it. Here is what Trump said about Covid-19 himself:

Trump says coronavirus worse 'attack' than Pearl Harbor

🕒 7 May 2020

Speaking to reporters in the Oval Office of the White House on Wednesday, Mr Trump said: "We went through the worst attack we've ever had on our country, this is worst attack we've ever had.

"This is worse than Pearl Harbor, this is worse than the World Trade Center. There's never been an attack like this.

"And it should have never happened. Could've been stopped at the source. Could've been stopped in China. It should've been stopped right at the source. And it wasn't."

Those are some strong words for a President to use and they can’t be taken lightly. Both the attacks on the World Trade Center and Pearl Harbor resulted in the United States entering into war. It’s easy to draw the conclusion that by saying Covid-19 was an attack “worse than Pearl Harbor”, that he considered Covid-19 to be an act of war, making Trump the wartime President he told us he was:

CORONAVIRUS

Trump labels himself 'a wartime president' combating coronavirus

"I do, I actually do, I'm looking at it that way," Trump told reporters during a press briefing at the White House when asked whether he considered the U.S. to be on a wartime footing. "I look at it, I view it as, in a sense, a wartime president. I mean, that's what we're fighting."

Mail-in Fraud

Trump designated Covid-19 as an act of war, and then he told us that the enemy would use it to steal the 2020 election.

From BBC:

"They're using Covid to defraud the American people," Mr Trump told delegates on the first day of the party convention in North Carolina.

From The Hill:

President Trump on Monday further cast doubt on the U.S. election process, claiming falsely that the only way he would lose in November is if the election is "rigged."

Trump made the remark at the end of a speech to supporters in Oshkosh, Wis., on Monday afternoon as he implored them to vote. It follows months of Trump claiming without evidence that widespread mail-in voting during the coronavirus pandemic would invite fraud into the election.

These are just the first actions we can look to in order to conclude that Trump was a wartime president. The next set of actions are even more important and more conclusive.

Election Infrastructure

On January 6th, 2017, Obama's Secretary of Homeland Security Jeh Johnson released a statement designating "Election Infrastructure" as part of our nation's "critical infrastructure.” This meant that an attack on our election infrastructure would now be considered an act of war:

“What we’ve seen our adversaries do over a period of years is the fact that they operate below the threshold level of war,” he said. “[T]hey steal intellectual property. They steal [personally identifiable information] or information on personnel. They cause discord within our social ranks or attempt to undermine our elections.”

Nakasone said a cyberattack from another government on U.S. critical infrastructure would cross the threshold into war, “and we would certainly respond.”

The U.S. government’s definition of critical infrastructure expanded in January 2017 when the Department of Homeland Security put election systems in that category.

I cover the cyber aspect of the 2020 election in Devolution Addendum 4 when I discuss Trump’s “Draft Executive Order” dated December 16th, 2020. While he didn’t sign and issue this executive order (because I believe he implemented a COG plan instead), it provides us with insight into his mindset and the options he was considering as he was supposedly leaving office. Here is the main body of that draft order:

I, Donald J. Trump, President of the United States, find that the forensic report of the Antrim County, Michigan voting machines, released December 13, 2020, and other evidence submitted to me in support of this order, provide probable cause sufficient to require action under the authorities cited above because of evidence of international and foreign interference in the November 3, 2020, election. Dominion Voting Systems and related companies are owned or heavily controlled and influenced by foreign agents, countries, and interests. The forensic report prepared by experts found that “the Dominion Voting System is intentionally and purposefully designed with inherent errors to create systemic fraud and influence election results. The system intentionally generates an enormously high number of ballot errors. The intentional errors lead to bulk adjudication of ballots with no oversight, no transparency, and no audit trail. This leads to voter or election fraud.” The report found the election management system to be wrought with unacceptable and unlawful vulnerabilities—including access to the internet—probable cause to find evidence of fraud, and numerous malicious actions.

There is also probable cause to find that Dominion Voting Systems, Smartmatic, Electronic Systems & Software, and Hart Inter Civic, Clarity Election Night Reporting, Edison Research, Sequoia, Scytl, and similar or related entities, agents or assigns, have the same flaws and were subject to foreign interference in the 2020 election in the United States. There is probable cause to find these systems bear the same crucial code “features” and defects that allowed the same outside and foreign interference in our election, in which there is probable cause to find votes were in fact altered and manipulated contrary to the will of the voters.

Dominion Voting Systems is based in Toronto, Canada, and assigns its intellectual property including patents on its firmware and software to Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank Corporation (HSBC), a bank with its foundation in China and its current headquarters in London, United Kingdom. The Dominion Voting system is owned and controlled by foreign entities. Multiple expert witnesses and cyber experts identified acts of foreign interference in the election prior to November 3, 2020 and continued in the following weeks. In fact, there is probable cause to find a massive cyber-attack by foreign interests on our crucial national infrastructure surrounding our election--not the least of which was the hacking of the voter registration system by Iran. (B.O. 13800 of May 11. 2017)

This order tells us that not only was there a cyber aspect to the election theft, but there was also foreign involvement. Remember why foreign involvement is so crucial? If Trump saw the actions of a foreign country as acts of war, then he could take any measure necessary to repel foreign aggression.

A common question I receive is “why didn’t Trump do anything if he had everything he needed to prevent Biden from taking office?” You have to look at this from his point of view. What would have happened?

With tensions as high as they were, it would have resulted in civil war. Think of the antifa and BLM protests from the summer of 2020, but a hundred times worse. In Devolution - Part 12 I discuss the Transition Integrity Project which openly promised violence in the streets if Biden wasn’t inaugurated.

Trump was up against the media, big tech, social media, many of the biggest corporations, the wealthiest individuals from all over the world, and most of the politicians on both sides of the aisle. Trump had only two things working for him, and it’s all he really needed:

- The will of the American people as the legal winner of the 2020 election
- The powers as President of the United States and Commander-in-Chief of its armed forces

With those two things in hand, and facing foreign and domestic enemies who stole an election, Trump went to work.

Implementing Devolution

Shakeup at the DoD

In order to pull something off like devolution, you need to have the right people in the right place at the right time.

On November 7th, 2020, the Associated Press declared Joe Biden the winner of the 2020 election. Two days later, Donald Trump began making unprecedented moves at the DoD. These moves are broken down in detail in Devolution - Part 3. I'm going to lay out the moves and then explain the significance of them at the end of this section.

Christopher C. Miller

On November 9th, 2020, Christopher C. Miller was promoted to Acting Secretary of Defense. As discussed in Part 3 and Devolution - Part 10, Miller has an extensive special operations and irregular warfare background. Here are a few of the many things he specialized in:

- Unconventional Warfare
- Counterinsurgency
- Foreign Internal Defense

Foreign Internal Defense: Activities that are “designed to protect against subversion, lawlessness, insurgency, terrorism, and other threats to their internal security, and stability, and legitimacy.”

Christopher Miller is arguably the best “special operations mind” our country has to offer and exactly who you would need to help implement a continuity of government plan designed to save our country.

On December 18, 2020, after only being in office for 1 month and 9 days, Christopher Miller made an extremely interesting comment to Mike Pence, leaving many curious what he was referring to when he mentioned “the most complex military operations this country has ever conducted.”

Anthony Tata

On November 10th, Anthony Tata was promoted to Senior Official Performing the duties of the Undersecretary of Defense for Policy (USD(P)). The USD(P) happens to be the primary coordinator for Department of Defense Directive 3020.26 which “establishes DoD continuity policy and assigns responsibilities for its implementation.”

In other words, one of the very first positions filled after Chris Miller became Acting Secretary of Defense, was the position that “Develops DoD policy and provides oversight for Continuity of Operations and Continuity of Government”.

Ezra Cohen-Watnick

On November 11th, 2020, while already serving as the Acting Assistant Secretary of Defense for Special Operations and Low-Intensity Conflict (ASD (SO/LIC)), Ezra Cohen-Watnick was promoted to fill the role of the Undersecretary of Defense for Intelligence (UDI).

This means the same individual (Ezra Cohen-Watnick) was serving simultaneously as the top Pentagon civilian overseeing intelligence and special operations.

On November 18th 2020, Sec Def Miller signed this memorandum designating the ASD (SO/LIC) (Ezra Cohen-Watnick) as a “principal staff assistant” which would report directly to The Secretary of Defense and Deputy Secretary of Defense meaning Ezra Cohen Watnick would now be reporting directly to Sec Def Miller instead of having to go through the bureaucracy.

Watnick was also appointed by Trump to chair the Public Interest Declassification Board in December of 2020, a position that would prove useful if you wanted to timely release previously classified information to the public. Watnick appears to be playing a major role considering the positions he was holding in the last months of Trump’s presidency.

Kash Patel

On November 11th, 2020, Kash Patel was promoted to Chief of Staff for Acting SecDef Miller. He had previously played a major role in uncovering the corruption of the Democrat party during both Spygate and the Ukraine Scandal. He is a lawyer who was a legal liaison to the Joint Special Operations Command. It was even rumored he was being considered to lead the CIA to replace Gina Haspel. As Chief of Staff for Sec Def Miller, Patel would have been intimately involved with the operations planning. He was also designated to lead the DoD's coordination with Biden's transition team.

There was an article published in late December of 2020 - 'Really quite shocking': Inside the ugly transition at the Pentagon - POLITICO:

But people with the transition said the outgoing team's conduct went far beyond the norm and pointed to loyalists installed by the White House as the main reason for the obstruction. Pentagon officials under President Donald Trump refused to provide information about current operations, particularly in the special operations realm, because they are "predecisional." That means the Biden team now has limited visibility into key operational issues, including what counterterrorism missions are in the works.

As the individual in charge of the transition from Trump's DoD, Kash Patel would have been playing a role in refusing to provide information to the Biden administration about current operations in the special operations realm.

What were they hiding?

What Does This Mean?

It appears Trump and his team were setting up special operations, and that it seems as if it was some sort of COG plan.

- One of the best special operations minds in our country was given command of the entire military as the Secretary of Defense
- The individual in charge of our nation's special operations was made to report directly to the Secretary of Defense and was also placed in charge of our military's intelligence
- A Trump loyalist was placed in the role for the DoD that handles all COG planning and oversight
- The Trump administration and the DoD refused to provide information about what was taking place in the "special operations" realm

There is much more information pertaining to these moves and the military's chain of command that come into play here. You can read more about those moves in Devolution - Part 3 and Devolution - Part 9.

Remember the timing of everything I just laid out. It came right after Joe Biden was declared the winner of a stolen election. A stolen election we already know Trump saw coming.

What happened next provides us with some of the most compelling evidence we have that Trump may have implemented a COG plan.

Continuity of Government

A Brief History

Continuity of operations (COOP) planning dates back to the Cold War as an effort to preserve the continuity of government (COG) in the event of a nuclear attack. Executive order 12656 laid the ground work and defined what a constitutes as a national security emergency.

Executive Order 12656. E.O. 12656, Assignment of Emergency Preparedness Responsibilities was issued November 18, 1988 by President Ronald Reagan.¹⁴ It assigns national security emergency preparedness responsibilities to federal departments and agencies. E.O. 12656 defines a national security emergency as “any occurrence, including natural disaster, military attack, technological emergency, or other emergency, that seriously degrades or seriously threatens the national security of the United States.”¹⁵

“Agencies were ordered to have not just a line of succession but also one of ‘devolution,’ a duplicate chain of individuals secreted outside Washington available in a catastrophic emergency.”

Here is the actual definition of devolution from Army PAM 500-30: U.S. Army Continuity of Operations Program and Planning Procedures:

Devolution

The transfer of statutory authority and responsibilities for performance of MEFs from an organization's primary operating staff to other employees internal or external to the organization in order to sustain essential functions for an extended period. Devolution is a continuity option used instead of, or in conjunction with, relocation in order to ensure the continued performance of essential functions.

Remember, continuity of government is all about making sure the MEFs - minimum essential functions - of our government continue to be carried out during an emergency.

The Devolution Executive Order

On December 7th, 2020, Donald Trump, the supposedly outgoing President, signed Executive Order 13961: Governance and Integration of Federal Mission Resilience (FMR EO). This Executive Order was released simultaneously with the Federal Mission Resilience Strategy 2020 (Strategy).

I break down the FMR EO and Strategy in detail in Devolution - Part 13. Here are the key takeaways:

- Donald Trump issued the FMR EO using his Presidential powers in the context of War & National Defense.
- The FMR EO explains that it is the policy of the United States to perform the National Essential Functions (NEF) in times of emergency.
- The FMR EO explains the switch from a reactive posture to a proactive posture in continuity planning, as if they knew something was coming.
- The FMR EO established an Executive Committee to “implement and execute” a continuity plan.
- The FMR EO detailed the roles of the Executive Committee and established that the Executive Committee should establish subordinate bodies and working groups to implement the continuity plan.
- The FMR EO detailed the back channel to the President: Mark Meadows.
- The FMR EO showed us who the new National Continuity Coordinator (NCC) is: National Security Adviser Robert O’Brien (or his or her designee).
- The FMR EO outlined the delegation of legal authority to use secure communications during a continuity event if the President had proclaimed there existed a state of war.
- The FMR EO consolidated responsibilities for secure communications away from every agency and into the FMR Executive Committee. This was another example of Trump bypassing the bureaucracy.
- The Strategy document outlines the context, planning model, and steps necessary to implement the COG plan. It includes:
 - Re-prioritization of essential functions.
 - Increasing possible groups or individuals available to perform those re-prioritized essential functions.

Read Devolution - Part 13 and you will see why the FMR EO and the Strategy were Trump putting a continuity of government plan into action. This plan created an Executive Committee of senior level officials and subordinate working groups that would be proactively ready to take on the authority and responsibility of performing the re-prioritized essential functions required to preserve our American way of life.

An outgoing President wouldn't issue an Executive Order like this unless he was going to use it. It suggests that Trump was preparing to leave office in a continuity of government situation based on his authority as a wartime President.

National Security Presidential Memoranda

We received further evidence of Trump leaving office on a wartime footing on January 13, 2021 when Trump began the issuance of multiple National Security Presidential Memorandums \(NSPMs\).

National Security Presidential Memoranda [NSPMs] Donald J. Trump Administration

In the Trump Administration, the directives that are used to promulgate Presidential decisions on national security matters are designated National Security Presidential Memoranda (NSPMs).

NSPM 28	The National Operations Security Program	01/13/21
NSPM 33	United States Government-Supported Research and Development National Security Policy (Fact Sheet) (Recommended Practices)	01/14/21
NSPM 34	[designating the National and Nuclear Risk Reduction Center]	01/1X/21
NSPM 35		01/XX/21

If you count how many days Trump was in office for up to January 12th, 2021, you would reach a total of 1,452 days. As of January 12th, 2021, Trump had issued 27 NSPMs for an average of 1 NSPM every 53.7 days.

He issued NSPM 28 on January 13th, 2021, and we are shown that there are a total of 35 NSPMs. This mean over his final 8 days in office, Donald Trump issued 8 NSPMs for an average of 1 per day. Trump was clearly leaving office with a focus on national security matters, further pointing to the idea that we are at war.

How?

How could Trump have implemented something as complex as devolution with hardly anybody knowing?

Presidents have many tools available to them for those “break glass in case of emergency” situations. One of those tools is Presidential Emergency Action Documents (PEADs). PEADs are classified top secret and are designed “to implement extraordinary presidential authority in response to extraordinary situations.” No PEAD has ever been declassified. No PEAD has ever leaked. They are not even subject to congressional oversight.

A PEAD is similar to a last will and testament. When you go and set up your will, you outline how you want things handled in the event of your death. Your will is a prepared document that doesn't go into effect until you die.

A PEAD is a prepared document, outlining what should happen in the case of a specific scenario or emergency. Like a last will and testament, a PEAD won't go into effect unless/until the specific situation they are designed for occurs. As of 2018, there were 56 PEADs.

There is a great article from the University of Michigan Journal of Law Reform with some great information discussing continuity of government (COG) and how PEADs play a role within COG planning:

Presidential declarations of national emergency enable the president to use draft classified orders to exercise perhaps even more expansive powers, known variously as Presidential Emergency Action Documents or Presidential Emergency Action Directives (PEADs).¹⁷² The Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA)

defines these documents as “[f]inal drafts of Presidential messages, proposed legislation proclamations, and other formal documents, including DOJ [Department of Justice]-issued cover sheets addressed to the President, to be issued in event of a Presidentially-declared national emergency.”¹⁷³ They originated as part of Eisenhower-era planning for continuity of government (COG) procedures, which were intended to maintain major government operations during and following a nuclear exchange with the Soviet Union.¹⁷⁴ The situations in which the Executive Branch plans to employ such procedures, however, now encompass a broad array of declared national emergencies.¹⁷⁵

I believe Trump implemented the fine details of his devolution plan through the use of PEADs. While PEADs would make it difficult for us to learn the details of the devolution operation - it would also make it difficult for our enemies.

Further supporting evidence showing Trump used the PEADs comes from the attempts by democrats in congress to get access to them. They did so 4 times in 2020 and once in 2021.

Here are their attempts from 2020:

- On April 24, 2020, House Judiciary Committee Chairman Rep. Jerrold Nadler and Subcommittee on the Constitution, Civil Rights, and Civil Liberties Chairman Steve Cohen sent a letter to Attorney General William Barr requesting a briefing and documents related to PEADs.
- On May 5, 2020, Senator Ed Markey introduced the Restraint of Executive In Governing Nation Act of 2020 requiring that the president disclose PEADs to the appropriate congressional committees.
- According to the Associated Press, in May 2020 a bi-partisan group of Senators sent a letter to then Acting Director of National Intelligence Richard Grenell asking to be briefed on PEADs.
- On September 23, 2020, House Democrats introduced as part of the Protecting Our Democracy Act a requirement that the president disclose PEADs to the relevant congressional committees.

One also has to wonder if this is what the January 6th committee is after.

Joe Biden the Resident

I've laid out the bulk of the devolution theory to give you an idea of the moves Trump made and how COG works. The next question to address is "what does this mean for Joe Biden?"

Even though I believe Donald Trump implemented devolution, he technically isn't President. He devolved his authority. Just based on the definition, his authority was essentially spread out amongst multiple individuals and organizations tasked with maintaining the National Essential Functions (NEF).

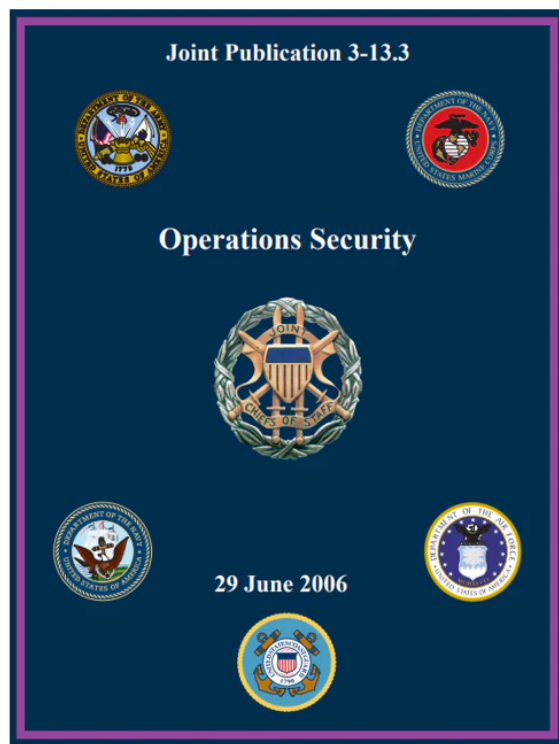

Joe Biden isn't technically the President either. He is virtually (and sometimes literally) just pretending. Whether the enemy knows Trump implemented devolution or not is irrelevant to me. They can't stop it because it falls completely within Trump's wartime powers.

The idea that Joe Biden is a fraudulent President means all of his actions are null and void. "Fraud vitiates everything". There will be some real damage done, and there will be suffering along the way, but in the end, nearly everything will be reversed, and we will come out stronger on the other side.

Loose Lips Sink Ships

One of the reasons people doubt devolution is because the key players involved deny it's happening. The thing you need to understand is, that is expected. There are multiple publications within the military doctrine series put out by the Joint Chiefs of Staff discussing military deception (MILDEC) and operational security (OPSEC).

MILDEC & OPSEC

It's important to understand that in any operation, especially one of this gravity, there will be no leaks or disclosure from anybody involved. In fact, they will likely do everything they can to persuade the world that nothing is happening at all.

8. Deception Story

The cornerstone of any deception operation is the deception story. The deception story is a scenario that outlines the friendly actions that will be portrayed to cause the deception target to adopt the desired perception. It is a succinct statement or narrative of exactly what the MILDEC planner wants the target to believe to be the true situation, then decide and act on that basis. In other words, the deception story parallels what the deception would want the opponent's intelligence estimate to say about your own commander's intentions and your own unit's actions. The deception story identifies those friendly actions, both real and simulated, that when observed by the deception target will lead it to develop the desired perception. Deception story development is both an analytic and creative process that involves a variety of information on enemy data acquisition and processing.

The Endgame

What's Next?

Here are the four phases of a continuity operation:

It's hard to know the exact timeline of when Trump officially made his moves but the above figure from AR-PAM 500-30 should give you a good idea the overall concept of devolution.

We are currently in Phase 3 and we don't move on to Phase 4 until "immediately after an event concludes". Nobody knows what that conclusion will look like.

This is the description of Reconstitution:

3–11. Reconstitution

Reconstitution is the final phase of a continuity event and is the process by which surviving and/or replacement personnel resume normal operations. Reconstitution may occur at any designated location that provides the staff, facilities, and systems necessary to sustain essential functions and activities to resume normal operations. Reconstitution activities re-establish noncritical missions, functions, organizations, resources, and services as they existed prior to the crisis event. Reconstitution is a combination of personnel, facilities, and IT systems and equipment actions taken to rebuild or replace the staff, facilities, and communications and IT capabilities as soon as possible after an event. As an element of continuity, reconstitution concurrently supports sustainment of MEFs while managing the resumption of normal operations. Since reconstitution activities should begin as soon as possible after a continuity event, the organization's COOP OPLAN will identify a reconstitution team by organization and position including the leadership, staff, and resources dedicated and separate from existing continuity support. In most cases, extensive coordination will be necessary to repair or rebuild the original facility or procure a new operating facility, backfill staff, reestablish communications and IT infrastructure, restore essential records, and take other actions to return the organization to normal operations. The organization's COOP OPLAN will—

The key phrase from above is “resume normal operations” and this phrase is one of the reasons I think Trump's return is part of the devolution plan. The “normal operations” before devolution was initiated had Trump as the President of the United States. Therefore, returning to “normal operations” would mean we would be returning to operations that had Trump as President of the United States.

The reasoning above is based on language and definitions found on continuity of government and continuity of operations. There are other reasons to believe Trump will return, which I outline throughout my Devolution Series.

What's The Hold-Up?

The Devolution operation to save our country has always had two parts. First, there is the part that Trump and the military have already taken care of. This is the part I piece together in my articles. They have captured the election theft evidence and are ready to make their move. They are waiting for the second part.

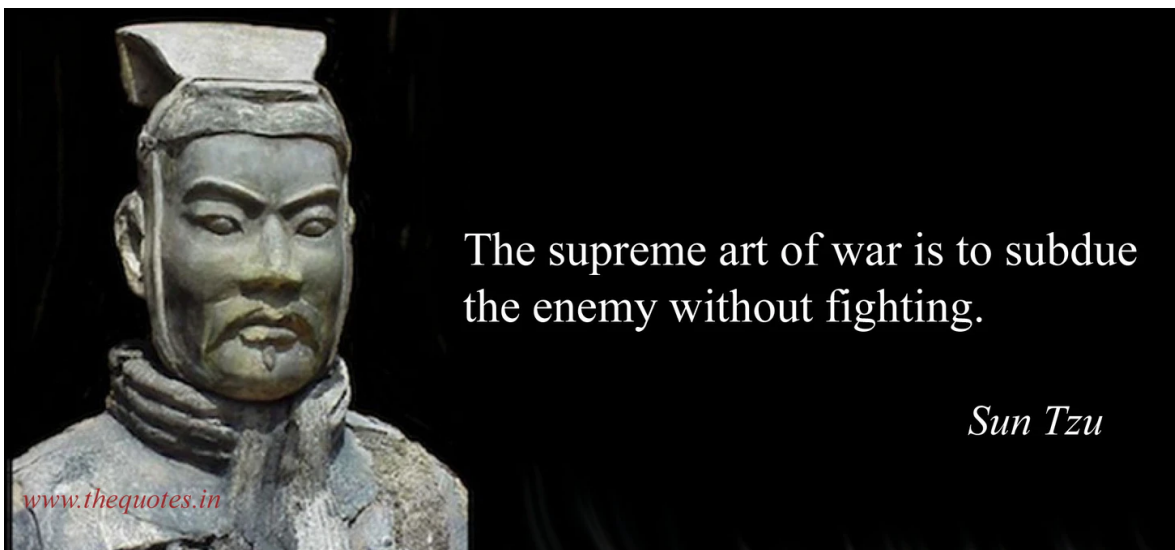

That second part is We the People.

Trump told us in his final campaign ad from 2016 that “The only force strong enough to save our country is us” and I don't think we understood quite how literally he meant it. What Trump is trying to accomplish is the rebirth of America, free of the political establishment that has raped and robbed our country for decades. Trump is engineering a unification of the two factions of Americans (the right and the left) into a single populace intent on taking their government back from the politicians who betrayed us all for personal gain.

He couldn't do that with a country so divided, as it was in the lead-up to Joe Biden's inauguration. Any attempt by Trump to publicly interfere in what the corrupt political establishment told us was "democracy", would have resulted in civil war, Trump being labeled as having perpetrated a coup, and his entire second term obstructed on a scale worse than his first term.

Trump had no other choice but to walk away and put the political establishment front-and-center. He warned us repeatedly what would happen, but some people have to see it for themselves. Exposure has been the Cabal's downfall and they are collapsing at free-fall speed.

America is being awakened millions of people at a time. The political establishment is doing a better job at red-pilling us than Trump ever could.

This is where The People come in to play. Every citizen should look at the body of evidence for devolution, and it should motivate them to join Trump's fight and do their part.

We all have a role in this plan to save the country.

For some, it might be getting involved in local government. For others, it might be doing everything they can to help wake up those around them. We need to demand accountability from our "elected" officials. We need to build an America First coalition hellbent on the biggest red wave in history in 2022. We also can't let them get away with what happened in the 2020 election. We need to stand up to save this country.

Trump implementing devolution means nothing without We the People.

THE BEST IS YET TO COME
